Warwick Junior High Becomes Homer L. Ferguson High School

(Note from the staff of THE MARINER: When the junior high school idea was abandoned in favor of the five-year plan, following consolidation with Newport News, the name Warwick Junior High was changed to Homer L. Ferguson, in honor of a former president of the Newport News shipyard. Following is a brief biography prepared by Miss Cerinda W. Evans, Librarian Emeritus of the Mariners Museum, and forwarded to the school by Mr. Richard Newman for insertion in our yearbook. Mr. Newman was named January 9, 1962, by city council to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Richard Yates whose death on November 28, 1961, left a vacancy on the school board. Miss Evans' biography of Mr. Ferguson is reprinted as it was received by the school from Mr. Newman.)

Homer Lenoir Ferguson
1873 - 1953

Homer Lenoir Ferguson was born March 6, 1873, the son of William Burder and Laura Reeves Ferguson, at the old home in Haywood County, North Carolina. When he was a year old, the family moved to Waynesville in the same county.

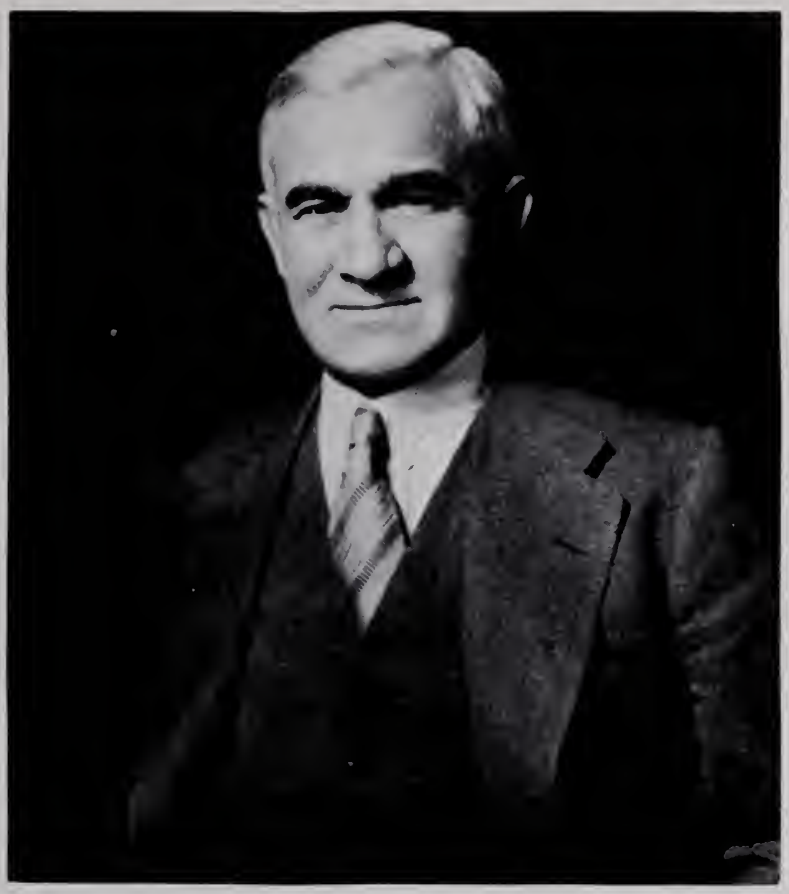

He entered the U. S. Naval Academy on May 21, 1888, at the age of fifteen, and was graduated with honors in June, 1892. In the fall of that year, he entered the School of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering in the University of Glasgow from which he was graduated in 1895 with a B. S. degree.

He was appointed as Assistant Naval Constructor, and on October 10, 1901, joined the staff of Admiral A. W. Stahl at the Newsport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company. In 1903, he was given charge of the Bureau of Construction and Repair at Washington, D. C.

In 1905, he resigned from the Navy, and joined the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company as Superintendent of Hull Construction. He was made General Manager of the Yard in 1912, Vice-president and General Manager in 1914, and President and General Manager in 1915. He accepted the Presidency on condition that he retain his residence in Newport News, he could keep in much better touch with the Yard. The earlier presidents had their offices in New York City and resided there.

In 1905, Mr. Ferguson had built a comfortable brick house on Huntington Avenue at 57th Street for his family. He desired it to be known that he was permanently established. He was married on September 23, 1895, to Miss Eliza Anderson Skinner of Kentucky. Six children had been born to them: Homer Lenoir, Junior, Charles Anderson, William McLeod, Walter Post, Isabel Laura, and Baby Elise.

Mr. Ferguson's period as chief executive extended to 1947, over three decades and through the two World Wars. Under the depression of the ten-year "Naval Holiday" after World War I, the shipyard entered other fields of activity in order to keep the skilled force together among which were the building of hydraulic turbines, repairing locomotives, building box cars, and the manufacture of paints for sale.

Homer Lenoir Ferguson

Shipbuilding was never overlooked, however, and an early contract was made for the reconditioning of the captured war prize, the passenger German liner VATERLAND which became the American LEVIATHAN. Bids were offered on every other available vessel with the surprising result of launching nine vessels in one day, March 20, 1926.

In 1929, Mr. Ferguson interested Archer Milton Huntington, then principal owner of the shipyard, in establishing a marine museum near the shipyard founded by his father, Collis Potter Huntington. Mr. Huntington agreed to finance such an institution if Mr. Ferguson would undertake the job. The Mariners' Museum came into being in 1930 and Mr. Ferguson served as its president until his death in 1953.

He was a member of the National Foreign Trade Council, the President's Commission on unemployment, the National Industrial Conference Board, and served as president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in 1919-1920.

He was a member of the Academy of Political Science, the Propeller Club of the U. S., the Society of Naval Architects and served as president of the Marine Engineers. He was president also of the National Council of American Shipbuilders, and a trustee of the Carnegie Institute of Washington.

He was a director of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia, and the Engineers Public Service Corporation of New York. He was president of the First National Bank of Newport News, director in the State-Planters Bank of Richmond, a director of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Association, and a member of Phi Beta Kappa honorary fraternity.

He served also in many local welfare groups.

His interest in education was shown in the development of the Shipyard Apprentice School and the enviable reputation it acquired throughout the country for the excellence of its methods and training. He became a member of the board of trustees of the Newport News Schools, a director of the Hampton Institute, and a member of the Virginia Apprentice Commission. He was especially interested in the Boy Scouts and aided in organizing the Newport News Boys Club. He served for a while on the board of visitors of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. Ferguson was awarded the Cross of the Legion of honor by France; the Knight Commander, Order of Leopold II by Belgium. A Certificate of Merit was awarded him by the President of the United States, and a Certificate of Honor was presented by the War Memorial Museum of the American Legion in Virginia. Many other certificates and medals were presented by the different organizations he had served. A gold medal was awarded posthumously by the board of trustees of The Mariners' Museum in remembrance of his untiring efforts for that institution. A number of honorary degrees were bestowed upon him by various colleges.

Hunting, family and fishing were his principal recreations; he belonged to a surprising number of fishing and hunting clubs.

In appearance, Homer L. Ferguson was above medium height, robust and vigorous from much outdoor life. He had a strong handsome face with a crop of thick brown hair which changed to gray at an early age. He had large expressive brown eyes and a generous mouth which could be a determined line across a set face, or wide parted lips in a most engaging smile.

His keen sense of humor and fund of amusing stories made him a delightful companion; his charm of manner was irresistible and won for him many devoted friends.

He died in his sleep in the morning of March 14, 1953, at his home on The Museum grounds, at the age of eighty.

Mrs. Ferguson Presents A Portrait

Although the entire center section of the auditorium had been reserved for visitors who wished to attend the dedication, only a few people were present. Several other members of Mr. Ferguson's family attended with Mrs. Ferguson, and a number of invited guests from the shipyard were there. Eleventh grade students occupied the sections of seats at each side of the auditorium, and all students listened via the public address system as the dedication ceremony was conducted.

Following the dedication, which was at 2:00 P.M., a tea was given in the school library for invited guests.

Foreword

Ferguson High School has grown out of Warwick Junior High.

In September 1961, students in the tenth and eleventh grades enrolled here for the first time. These were in addition to the eighth and ninth grades previously making up the student body. Ferguson will graduate its first senior class in June 1963.

The session beginning in September 1961 is to be remembered chiefly as a year of addition, construction, growth, and transition. A new wing has been built at the rear of the original plant. The curriculum has been expanded to accomodate the additional grade levels. Until completion of the new wing, classes beginning in 1961 were held in the cafeteria, the library, and the auditorium, not because there were a greater number of students than the year previous, but because the additional courses for tenth and eleventh grade students made this necessary.

Since this school year has been marked by change, evidenced most directly by new construction, the staff of this first MARINER elected to use a theme for the yearbook paralleling the 1961 - 62 building program at Ferguson High. The staff has "constructed" the '62 MARINER on a plan which, they hope, illustrates a spirit of growth - from September to June.

Going up . . .

Once construction got under way, in the summer of 1961, our new addition seemed to go up by leaps and bounds. One could almost see the place grow from day to day. Unusually fine autumn weather was an advantage to the contractor.

"Sidewalk superintendents" had nothing on students at Ferguson, as the first picture on this page testifies. Somehow, however, it seems that none of the Mariners got poured into the mortar and none got his head cracked with a brick. It was a great first year at Ferguson High.

And when the new wing was completed . . .

students were ready to make use of it. They cheered and they talked and were very proud of the addition to Ferguson High.

And the teachers were glad too, because some of the crowded conditions were improved. There was still a crowd, of course, but at least there was a little more space to be crowded.

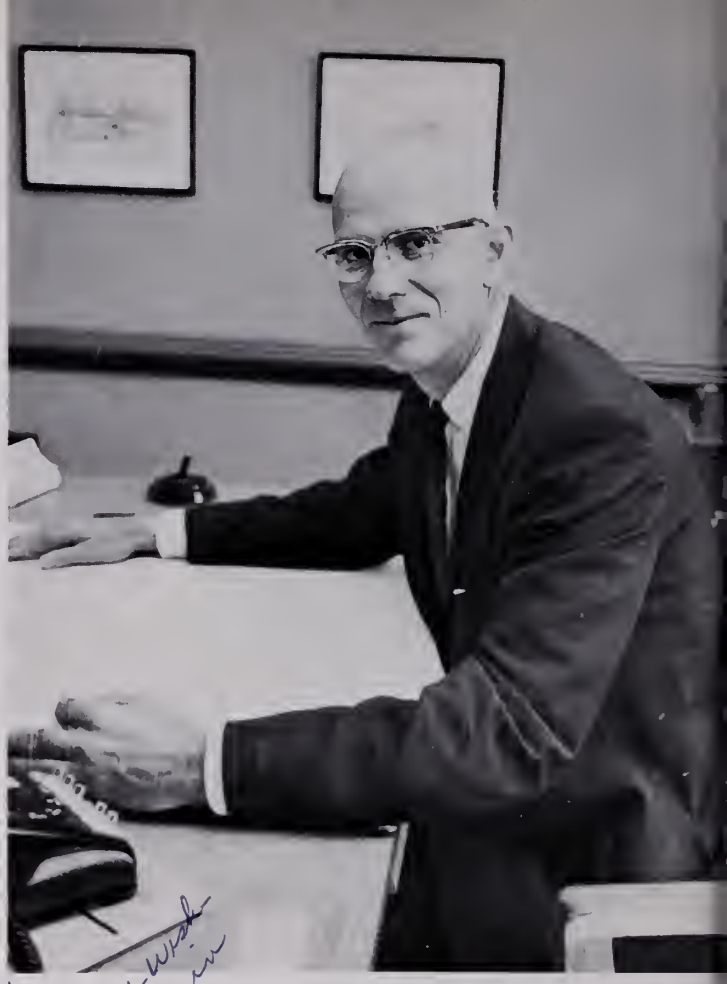

Administration

Mr. T. E. Baines, at right, is Principal at Ferguson High School. He came here from Warwick High in 1960 where he had been assistant principal for one year. Prior to that he had been an elementary principal in Newport News. Mr. Bains holds a B.S. degree from the College of William and Mary, and an M.A. degree in School Administration from the University of Virginia.

Mr. Jack Powers, bottom left, is an Assistant Principal. He is new here this year, coming from the Newport News High School faculty. Mr. Powers has an A.B. degree from the University of Richmond, and an M. Ed. degree from the College of William and Mary.

Mrs. George Passage, lower right, is also Assistant Principal. This is her second year in that position. Previously she taught English here for two years. Mrs. Passage has a B.S. degree from Appalachian State Teachers College.

Non-teaching Staff

Although they are not full-time members of the faculty at Ferguson, the three ladies pictured below are so frequently called upon as substitutes most people think of them as regular teachers. They are Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Bradburn, and Mrs. Mitchell.

Where the new meets the old

Only These Remain

The Classes

On pages 29 through 87 in this first MARINER are the individual pictures of the most important people at Ferguson High School.

Here are the people for whom all this building is being done. Each individual student is of primary concern at Ferguson. Collectively, they are THE REASON for constructing and supplying such a building.

The great majority of these students, pictured on the following pages, will return to Ferguson next year, since there is no graduating class in 1962.

All these people, like the faculty and others concerned, will remember the school year 1961 - '62 as one characterized by crowded conditions, classes-everywhere, trucks, ladders and wheel-barrows, piles of building materials . . . and great expectations.

Matters of lines, slopes, and y-intercepts occupy the class at left. Bill Shiver makes a point, as Barbara Hoffman, near board, and others, watch and listen.

In the second picture at left, a class studies a "new" subject at our school. This is the first year in which a course in plane geometry has been offered, since the tenth grade was added to the student body in 1961. Pat Morrison, at the board, is concerned with logical arrangements of "statements" and "reasons".

Algebra, the language of all higher mathematics, is the basic foundation course and is available to all students from the eighth grade upward. A few years ago, algebra was first offered to eighth graders who are particularly strong in mathematics. In the picture at left, Ed Polhamus and Mary Becker tackle problems in the long division of polynomials.

In a very crowded classroom:

Mr. Leonard's trigonometry "classroom", pictured at top, right, is an example of the extremely crowded conditions which existed at Ferguson until the new wing was completed. Actually, this class was conducted in one of the very small storage rooms at the rear of the library. Students in that class are Gary Crum, Bill McIntire, Kay Lynn Pratt, Dick Allerton, Steven Jayne, and Connie Ogle.

The second picture shows a class conducted by Mr. Bachman during an exercise in indirect measurement. Several different outside problems occupied this group.

Harvey Huffstetler, Rosemary Parker, Dick Allerton, and Judy Sturn weigh and measure chemicals for an experiment in a chemistry class. This is the first year in which chemistry has been offered, since it is a part of the advanced science curriculum of the upper high school grades.

Building Citizens, through Social Studies

Social studies classes give students an opportunity to discuss current issues, as illustrated at left above. Another part of the work in social studies involves research, which takes the students at right, above, to the library to "look it up". Below, a group of students display some of the handiwork in projects which they have done. In this picture are Harry Cameron, Charles Carter, Richard Pultz, Shela Holt, Jane Miller, Johnny Brandt, Mary Dry, Frances Tanner, and Jeannie Smith.

The social studies department was the most "displaced" group in school during the first half of the school year. Classes were held in the library two at a time, in the auditorium, two at a time, and in the cafeteria. The picture above illustrates the crowded conditions in the library in a social studies group. Social studies teachers were perhaps the most relieved of all when the new wing was completed and classes were given more acceptable conditions for working.

Breaking our language into basic parts, and putting it together again.

In the other picture taken in an English classroom, a group of students in one of Mrs. Pepper's classes makes use of one device which for some time has been found valuable at this school. This is known as the Reading Laboratory, and has proved very effective in helping students to improve reading skills.

Art builds a sense of appreciation

Mr. Woody teaches art and journalism. Under his tutelage, art students in the picture above left tackle sculpture problems. The students are Gwen Vrugtman, David Abbott, Jane Miller, and Nestor Morales. The other top picture is a section of one of Mr. Chavatel's classes. These boys are Jerry Morgan, Richard Blount, Richard Wood, David Kahn, Robert Burcher, Randy Ingram, and Lynn Clark.

Building . . . whatever is to be built.

'Shop' . . . Or boon to all boys

Wood shop instruction involves much more than simply "making something". The use of mathematical relationships, rules, and formulas, also is part of the course. Above, two students run through one of these formulas while two others look on. Doing the work here are Danny Smith and Bruce Hitt; watching are Ronald Davis and Johnny Folds.

The lower picture shows a usual classroom scene in the drafting room at Ferguson. Over the years, drafting has proved to be one of the most popular courses in the curriculum at our school. Mr. Phipps, drafting teacher, and Mr. Ward, instructor in metal work, are both new in our school this year.

Building . . . skills in homemaking

All set for apple pie and coffee are Elsie Bryant, Karen McLellan, Mary Ripley, Nancy Corrick, and Jane McCoy.

Food service, an important part of homemaking, is a chief area of study and practice in home economics classes. The girls learn to plan, prepare, and serve interesting and nourishing meals in a number of different situations.

Below, these three girls get ready to sample a cake baked in the home economics department. They are Sharon Collier, Sandy Sheppard, and Becky Bowen.

Feeding a person who is ill at home is another lesson in homemaking. The "patient" is Judy Epstein, and the others are Maggie Tucker, Glenda Barnes, Diane Rowand, and Kitty Snow.

Building

The physical education of students at Ferguson involves numerous activities. In pleasant weather, instruction frequently is held on the grounds outside the building. Inside, the use of the horizontal bars is illustrated by Bill Casey, Wayne Ruth, Ronnie Mitchell, Dave Myers, Frank Gammon, and Wayne Beverly. Wrestling is demonstrated by Richard Roberts, Bill Casey and Fred Gruner.

Building competence in other languages

Third Year Latin For The First Time

One of the courses which have been added to our curriculum this year is third year Latin. The class below, taught by Mr. Nims, is hearing a report being given by Edward Shreeves.

Lisons en francais

. . . cum libertate justitiaque omnibus

Building . . . careers in business

The business department, headed by Mrs. Gaw, is new in our school this year. Classes in typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, record keeping, general business, and economics, were added to the curriculum.

The business department was one of several which had to use make-shift space arrangements until the new wing was completed.

Trying Out The New Wing

The business department gets the full benefit of the addition to Ferguson. And the picture above is the only one the staff was able to get before our printing deadlines were exhausted. A shorthand class taught by Mrs. Gaw, who heads the department, sneaked over a few days before we actually occupied the new quarters and tried out one of their nice, big, bright rooms. They liked it.

Although our picture does not show some of the special features of the new quarters, actually the rooms are quite different from those occupied in the older building. The department is in one section of the first floor, equipped especially for business classes, and are larger than other classrooms.

One very snazzy section of the department has a suite of offices. . . . or lest we exaggerate, at least there is an "inner" and an "outer" office where, no doubt, all kinds of procedures and situations can be duplicated.

Now is the time for . . .

The staff had hoped to get pictures of students using some new office machines, but no machines were available as of February 15. So we did the best we could. Below are pictures showing students using two "machines" that no business office could get along without. . . One is for adding and the other is for typing.

As The Building Progressed . . .

Mr. West and his crew made provisions for extending their work to cover the new wing. These people have done the almost impossible -- housecleaning for about 1600 teen-agers.

Building confidence, poise, stage-presence

Speech and drama classes were particularly crowded at Ferguson during the second semester since elective offerings at our school are very limited. However, drama facilities were greatly improved with the new addition. An ample dressing room was added, just off stage, and the adjacent band quarters were enlarged.

Suggestions have been made regarding forensic activities at Ferguson, but so far nothing has been done in this area.

The Mariners Band

Our band was first organized in 1956, when the school began operating as Warwick Junior High. The director, and the man responsible for the magnificient record and reputation of the band, is Mr. Donald Bruno. Under his direction the band has been outstanding, year after year.

The school band plays for athletic events, civic parades, school assemblies, and presents several concerts during the school year. The annual Christmas concert is one of the highlights of the entire school year. Individual members of the band have achieved special honors, too. In competition with members of other high school bands in the fall of 1961, 13 musicians of the Mariners group were placed on the All-State Band, along with three alternates. This record is not unusual for students who perform under Mr. Bruno's baton. The people of the school community have come to expect only the finest results whenever Mr. Bruno and his charges begin to play.

On Parade

The CHEERLEADERS made a little study of costumes and came up with their version of the ways they might look if they went native.

The CHEERLEADERS managed all kinds of demonstrations for pep assemblies, and indeed, as the picture above right shows, they even learned to defy the laws of gravity.

MARINER teams met their first varsity competition this year and all in all came through with good records. Over and over again it has been pointed out that the spirited yells of the cheerleaders was a big help to the coaches and the athletic teams.

This was the first year of varsity competition for the Mariners, and our school has no seniors this year. In view of the lack of experience, and the fact that as far as this team and this coach are concerned, ALL is new, Ferguson has every right to be very proud of the record in basketball for this first season. We all know that better records are in the making.

Indoor Track Practice

That's a track . . .? That's a bat . . .?

Baseball coach Harold Butler was asked to pose with some of his prospective baseball players in a demonstration of how to hold a bat. As the picture turns out, Mr. Butler is either about to bunt or else it was just too cold the day the picture was taken and he decided to hold a ball instead of a bat. Mr. Butler doesn't know how to pose for a picture. . .he just knows how to coach baseball. Also in the picture are Bubba and Kenny "Farinos" and Buddy Spencer.

Future Champions

Mariner golfers looking forward to a big season on the green are G. A. Goddin, Lee Rawles, Paul Taylor, Bobby Powers, David Epley, Tom Rawles, Wade Hannum, Brooke Carter, C. W. Hornsby, Bobby Reynolds, and coach Begor.

The yearbook deadlines do not fit in very well with activities of this particular group of Fergusonites. Annual staff can report that there is a great deal of enthusiasm, and the boys are working with a capable coach, so indications are that this team, like the others from our school, will do all right for themselves.

There is certainly no doubt that they are going to have a lot of fun.

Staff Members Assemble Materials For THE MARINER, Vol. I

As best we can tell it, this is the story of the first year at Ferguson High. Here, then, is the first MARINER, successor to previous yearbooks called THE CAVALIER. During the summer of 1961, the school's team name was changed, and the yearbook title simply follows suit.

The staff wishes to express special thanks to our art teacher, Mr. George Chavatel, who designed our title pages and gave his expert advice and assistance in other art matters.

All teachers have earned our grateful appreciation, especially for their cooperation in helping us to picture this first year as Ferguson High.

But the students themselves, individually and collectively, are primarily responsible for "making" THE MARINER. The staff has served only to record the scenes and activities of the citizens of Ferguson High.

Soon after the first materials for THE MARINER went to the printers, our school system lost an eminent member of the School Board pictured on page 12. Mr. Richard Yates died November 28, 1961.

The annual staff, faculty, and students of Ferguson High, honor the memory of this Man for his contributions in behalf of public Education.

Mr. Richard Newman, an attorney, who is a graduate of Newport News High School and the University of Virginia, was named to replace Mr. Yates on the School Board.

About those wrong colors:

The staff of THE MARINER must make one apology. School colors were changed from red and gray to blue and white, but the annual staff was unaware of this change until after colors for the yearbook cover and title pages had been designated for the printers. Luckily, and coincidentally, the staff did use some blue also. Unfortunately, band uniforms, since they are very expensive, probably will remain red and gray for a few more years. But next year's annual staff can sport the new blue and white in keeping with our athletic program.

THE CITY OF NEWPORT NEWS

P. S.

We finally did get moved into that new wing, on February 12. Now people are guessing what we'll do NEXT year when we have maybe 600 new students coming in and no graduates this year. Some say a second story on top the middle section is the next likely move.

It was real fine to get into the new wing, as any of those several hundred students housed in the library, the auditorium, and the cafeteria will happily testify.

Perhaps the greatest innovation in the new wing, and a boon to teachers and students alike, is the return to the use of BLACK blackboards. Some years ago somebody sold somebody the idea (?) that boards should be green. From then on students and teachers suffered along until finally it appears green has run its course and what's written can once more be read.

The staff had counted on a picture of the group of students who were elected to membership in the National Honor Society. However, the organization was delayed until too late for the yearbook picture.

Now let's see. . . . .What else is new?

An annual staff must plan and plan and plan, you know. Good planning is the key to really good yearbooking.

It seems there WAS something else. . . . . .

Oh now we remember ! THESE PICTURES !

Kay,
I think an awful lot of you and you've been such a help to me since I've been over here. Hope we'll be stationed together again sometime. Best of luck always. Remember me and never lose contact with each other.
